

Enhance Your Remodeling Project with Window Films

Whether you're remodeling a small half bath or a four-bedroom-house, the right aesthetic choices make all the difference. You may find yourself facing the tough decision of how to get the look you want at the value you need. When it comes to your windows, there's no reason to sacrifice beauty over budget when you can install a decorative custom window film.

What Are Decorative Films?

A thin laminate film that can be installed on the inside or outside of any glass surface, decorative films add beauty to your home and provide privacy and glare protection. There's no limit to what artistic vision you can bring to life when you work with an experienced and talented designer. In addition to existing stained-glass options, you also have the freedom to alter colors to match your palette, have an image or personal picture printed onto film, and request edits to designs. You'll get the opportunity to view your design before it's printed to ensure it's exactly what you want.

No Professional Installation Required

Unlike expensive and fragile stained-glass windows, custom window film can be easily and personally installed in minutes with only scissors, water, and a soft cloth. If you're concerned about your window's exposure to the sun, you can even opt to add additional UV coating to protect your design.

Easy to Maintain

You can skip the expensive cleaning solutions and keep your film clean by wiping it down with water and a cloth. Most window film can be removed and reapplied if you're concerned with placement, want to change your design according to the season, or want to transition it to a new location. Certain security films feature an adhesive backing to absorb and collect glass in the event your window breaks, making your home safer.
